THE STORM OF THURSDAY.

Where it was Bred and Born and ho far it Extended-How it Affected the Rise and Fall of the Barometer-The Fruit Probably Damaged.

The storm that swept over this city on Thursday and onward to the northeast was robably developed in the northern portion f New Mexico. It came under observation first on Wednesday morning, when falling barometers, increasing temperatures and south and southwest winds were reported from the southwest and northward to the lower lakes, while an area of greater pressure and cold north and northwest winds was moving rapidly from the extreme northwest. During Wednesday light rain fell most of the day at this point, and was also reported from Shreveport, Vicksburg, St. Louis and Louis-ville, but during the morning of Thursday the storm developed in severity and heavy rains were reported from all the stations south of us, including Galveston and Indianola. Evening reports showed the storm had reached Cincinnati, where the extremely low barometer of 29.16 inches was reported from St. Louis. Heavy snow was reported, with rapidly rising barometer and falling tempera-ture, and heavy rains from Cairo, Louisville, Nashville, Pittsburg and Vicksburg, with orisk to high winds accompanying, were also reported. The center of the storm passed to the north of Memphis, the lowest barometer reported. here being 29.34 at two o'clock in the after-noon. At half-past two o'clock the wind hifted to the northwest, the barometer rising over half an inch in five hours, and the temperature decreasing thirty degrees in the same time. The greatest velocity of wind was twenty-four miles, between two and three o'clock in the afternoon. The midnight re-ports of the eighth instant showed rapidly rising barometers, decreasing temperatures and clear and clearing weather from St. Louis to Indianola. At the latter place and Galveston there were signs of a severe norther, which the morning reports of the ninth instant confirmed. The total rainfall here was only .68 inch. Be-tween five and six o'clock Thursday afternoon and seven and eight o'clock Friday morning a few flakes of snow fell. Had it not been for the extreme dryness of the northwest wind, there would, in all probability, have been a heavy snow-fall. Friday morning reports show a decrease in temperature of from twenty to thirty-five degrees from that of Thursday morning at the following places:
Louisville, Nashville, Memphis, Vicksburg, New Orleans, Shreveport, Galveston and Indianola. This storm and the great cold, which has extended as far south as Shreveport will in all probability seriously degrees.

Call Upon the Merchants of Memphis to Indorse the Empty Promises and Platitudes of His Fraudulency's Inaugural,

And to Indorse the Elevation of a Professed Democrat, who, on the 16th of February, Three Weeks Before Tilden was Defrauded, Negotiated His Present Position.

What a Leading Lawyer of Memphis Has to Say in a "Talk with Democrats"-Hayes will be and do, as Morton Says, what His Party Demands.

We publish the following call as expressive of a part of the current movement the time. But in doing so we protest against the implication it might carryto some minds that any of the Democrats of Memphis either indorse Hayes or Key, or with either. This is a free country, and gentlemen are free to make choice of principles and parties. The signers of this call are all and parties. The signers of this call are all subverted it and defeated its practical working. If these results are less to be depressed than anarchy and bloodshed, and the well, no doubt, in the movement their signatures indorse. But differing as we do from them in the objects they have in view, it is our duty to advise Democratic merch unts not to give the meeting countenance, but to lend their aid and help in every way possible to make it understood by THE PEOPLE OF THE SURROUNDING STATES, WHOSE TRADE MAKES MEMPHIS WHAT SHE IS, THAT SHE IS STILL A DEM-OCRATIC CITY, IN FULL SYMPATHY WITH THEM IN THEIR UTTER DE-TESTATION OF THE FRAUD BY WHICH HAYES WAS MADE PRESI-DENT AND KEY HAS BEEN MADE POSTMASTER-GENERAL. In another part of this APPEAL we copy from leading meetings as this. We commend these opinions to the Democratic merchants whose names are to be found below; and we commend to them this fact, that in spite of Radand there is no record of such extremely cold icalism, the south has taken possession of all her State governments but two; and, in spite of Radicalism, has made the waste places blossom as the rose, and built up and sustained great centers of industry. A Talk with Democrats. EDITORS APPEAL-There is, I presume, no Democrat, or scarcely any candid person, who loes not feel that in the late political contest a grievous wrong has been done in depriving the Democratic party of the fruits of a fairly-earned victory; but there is a difference of opinion among those composing this party as to the course proper to be pursued in view of the declared result of that contest. Some are isposed to yield to despair; to surrender the field to the enemy, and never again to make an effort to achieve a success that they assert to be hopeless. Some denounce in unmeasured terms the fraud and villainy by which our hopes have been frustrated, and proclaim an uncompromising war with our adversaries, while, at the same time, they cast reproaches upon those Democrats who have, as they allege, been derelict in their duty, or have permitted themselves to be overruled by their political opponents. A third class take the ground that as the contest has ended, the bitterness of the strife should cease, and we should quietly acquiesce in the result and extend to those in power, if not our confidence, at least our forbearance and a magnanimous forgetfulness of the past. In this conflict of opinions I hope it will not be considered officious in me, as a mere private member of the party, to sub-mit a few reflections to my brother Democrats as to the duties of the hour. And, first, to those who, disgusted and dis-heartened with the past, resolve to make no effort for the future, allow me to say that this s not a resolve that accords with the obligations of a patriot or a philanthropist. Be-cause virtue and truth have been worsted in a contest with falsehood and vice is surely no reason why they should abandon the strug-gle, and allow the world to drift to perdition. should, on the other hand, inspire then with a renewed and invincible energy. Howe have any faith in God, or hope in man, we must believe that truth and right, though often baffled, must ultimately triumph. Although the government of our country has, by foul with a renewed and invincible energy. ernment of our country has, by foul means, been continued in the hands of a corrupt party, it is still none the less our country, and its welfare should not cease to be the paramount object of our desire and effort. There is no more of fatalism in politics than in the ordinary affairs of life, and never was here, in the history of the Democratic party, less cause for despair or more to inspire hope than at the present moment. Ever since the close of the war its march has been steadily The pulmonic syrup ripens the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm or matter is ripe a slight cough will throw it off, the patient has rest, and the lungs begin to heal.

To enable the pulmonic syrup to do this, Schenck's mandrake pills and Schenck's seawaged to learnest the morbid matter in the lungs; nature throws it off by an easy expectoration, for when the phlegm onward. At that time it could claim scarcely a single State and had but a handful in either house of congress. To-day, at least half of the States recognize its sway; it has a majority in the house of representives and a large minority that will in two or three years swell to a majority in the senate, and unless swell to a majority in the senate, and unless swell to a majority in the senate, and unless schenck's mandrake pills and Schenck's sea-weed tonic must be freely used to cleanse the stomach, and liver. Schenck's mandrake we commit the suicidal and, I may say, criminal folly of fostering dissensions and distrust n our own ranks, or shall in some way forfeit the growing confidence of the country, we will in the next quadrennial contest for the Presidency be undispoted masters of the situation and will rescue the government from the grasp of misrule and place it under Democratic auspices. To those Democrats then, who belong to the second class above referred to, let me say in all kindness, beware how you in the extremity of your grief and indignation in being despoiled of the fruits of our late victory, visit reproach and condemnation upon those of our party who, as you may suppose, have contributed to this result. That the representatives san character. The public mind was in a state of fearful excitement. The peace and pros-perity of the country were imperiled, and the eyes of the world were upon us, curious to see how our institutions would bear the terrible strain to which they were being subjected. In this supreme exigency the Democratic party, with a magnanimity and an unselfish patriot ism unparalleled in party annals, manifested a readiness to forego the advantage it possessed by virtue of its large majority in the popular branch of congress, that would in a probable contingency control the election of a President, and proposed to refer the matter in dis-pute to the arbitrament of a tribunal comparatively exempt, as was supposed, from party influences. Before such a tribunal they feit confident of success, for they knew, and the world knew, that the candidates of the Democratic party had been fairly elected by an overwhelming pop-ular majority and by a majority of the elect-oral votes, and that there could no risk in submitting their claims to a fair and impartial investigation. Hence the electoral bill, constituting the joint committee of fifteen, received one hundred and fifty-six votes in the house and all the Democratic votes in the senate except that of Senator Eaton. It was violently opposed by the most ultra of the violently opposed by the most ultra of the opposite party in both houses, and its passage was regarded as securing the inauguration of Mr. Tilden. The result proved that the organization of this commission, however well-meant, was a calamity. Its decisions shocked the moral sense of the country by their utter disregard of right and justice. It destroyed the public confidence in the highest judicial tribunal known to our laws, and furnished mortifying and melancholy evidence that judges are but men, and that the most solemn sanctions and the most exalted positions offered guaranty against partisan bigotry and un-blushing fraud. It defeated the expressive have now or propose to have any affiliation will of the people, and taught us that our government may continue to exist in out-ward form, undisturbed by violence, while fraud and political knavery have virtuall THE STR. utter destruction of the material interests of the country, then the institution of the joint commission was, perhaps, at least a wise choice of evils. But, however this may be, it does not become us Democrats, who were but spectators of the fierce struggle at Washington, to criticise and censure our represent-atives there any more than it does the nonactives there any more than it does the hon-combatant to sit in judgment upon the tac-tics or the conduct of a campaign or a battle. It is much easier always to be wise after an event than before it occurs. If we had been actors in what transpired we might possibly have opposed the electoral bill, but the prob-abilities are all the other way. So at least abilities are all the other way. So at least feels the writer of this, who distrusted the re from its inception, only induced to believe apprehensions were groundless from the fact that it was so obnoxious to Morsouthern papers what every Democrat will ism. After the bill became a law there was but one course left open for those Democrats who voted for it, and that was a manly and honorable acquiescence in the result. But acquiescence in the result does not imply a quiescence in the corrupt means by which it was brought about. It does not mean that we shall fall into line with those Democrats constituting the third class alluded to in the commencement of this article, who laud the christian grace of charity and insist that by-gones shall be by-gones, and that we shall take the incoming administration with a magnanimous oblivion of its antecedents and a generous trust for the future. The inauguration of Mr. Hayes is the consummation of a great crime; the culmination of conspiracy and fraud. For this no amnesty can be granted. So far as measures of policy that he ic welfare they should meet with the hearty support of Democrats everywhere, and no nerely factious opposition should be made to nis administration. But let us never cease to proclaim from the house-tops that the official position he holds rightfully belongs to an-other; and let the conspirators and political jugglers by whom he was placed in power and the will of the people defeated, be pillo-ried in the public gaze, that their infamy may not become contagious or stand as a pre-cedent for future imitation. Mr. Hayes may be, and probably is, a gentleman of kindly heart and good intentions, but no one can now predict the course of his administration Inaugurals are very unreliable expositions of the policies that will be pursued by their authe policies that will be pursued by their authors. The platitudes and generalities in which that of Mr. Hayes abounds may mean a great deal or mean nothing. In all that he says about the southern States, and it constitutes the staple of his address, there is not a single sentence that announces sharply and decisively a solitary measure of policy that he proposes to adopt. All is left to doubt and conjecture. If let alone, his bearing toward the south might be conciliatory and just, but he south might be conciliatory and just, but s Morton, the oracle of his party, announce in his Indianapolis speech, in which he struck the key-note of the late canvass, the President will be what the party that elected him requires or desires him to be. The appointment of Mr. Key to a seat in the cabinet has no political significance. Mr. Key is a gentleman of moderate ability, and without a tollowing. Politically and geographically, he represents nothing. A man who could rise in his place in the senate and become, not only the replace of the senate and become, not be laid to heart by the bankers and business men of our city, and that no one of them, eswill countenance the indorsement of Hayes or his man Key.

table construction, be regarded as a representative man of either the party or the section. If it be true that General section. If it be true that General Joe Johnston was invited to a seat in the cabinet, that was a significant act on the part of Mr. Hayes, a tender of the olive-branch that we southern Democrats and quondam so-called rebels could appreciate. But, on the other hand, if it be true, as alleged, that this offer of Mr. Hayes was violently opposed by the ultra men of his party, to whose dictation he was compelled to submit, and withdraw the name of General Johnston, then it is only a verification. General Johnston, then it is only a verification of Morton's aphorism, and Mr. Hayes is but a puppet in the hands of the Mortons and the Blaines, and the other bad men who surround him, and from whom neither the south nor the country has anything to hope. One thing is certain: If Mr. Hayes is true to his country he must break with his party. Be-tween the two there is an irreconcilable an-tagonism; and as to what his choice will be, fear there is little room to doubt. Let, then, Democrats still keep their armor on. Let them stand shoulder to shoulder, without distrust or alienation, with sentinels at their posts and signal lights blazing from every hill-top; and four years more of progress such as we have already made will place the success of our grand old party beyond the paralyzing influences of returning boards or high joint Stacker Lee ... master | E.
